GARFIELD AND THE CREDIT MOBIL-IER.

The Credit Mobilier company was a corporation organized under the laws of Pennsylvania, and authorized by its charter to purchase and sell various kinds of securities, and to make advances of money and credit to railway and other improvement companies. Its charter described a class of business, which, if honestly conducted, any citizen could have properly engaged in. On the 16th of August, 1867, Oakes Ames made a contract with the Union Pacific to build 667 miles of road at rates ranging from $42 to $96,000 per mile, and for executing this contract, he was to receive $47,925,000 in cash or in the securities of the company. On the 15th of October, 1867, a triple contract was made between Ames of the first part and seven persons as trustees of the second part, and the Credit Mobilier company of the third part, by which the Credit Mobilier company was to advance money to build the road, and to receive thereon 7 per cent interest, and 2 1/2 per cent commission; the seven trustees were to execute the Ames contract, and the profits thereon were to be divided among them, and to the stockholders of the Credit Mobilier company.

In 1866 or the early part of 1867, George Francis Train called on Mr. Garfield, who was then in Washington, and said he was organizing a company to be known as the Credit Mobilier of America, and was to be formed on the basis of the Credit Mobilier of France. The object of the company as stated by Train, was to purchase lands and build houses along the line of the Union Pacific railway, at points where cities and villages were likely to spring up. Train also stated that the investment would be a profitable one, and that holders of shares of stock would trouble their money each year. The subscriptions were limited to $1000 each. Train pretended to show Mr. Garfield a long list of subscribers, and among the number was Oakes Ames, then a member of Congress from Massachusetts. Garfield said he would not subscribe then, and he heard nothing further of the matter until the next spring.

Then Oakes Ames approached Mr. Garfield on the subject, but not being able to satisfy himself as to the extent of the pecuniary liability in owning such stock, Garfield again refused. It was sometime after this that the Credit Mobilier company became involved in a controversy with the Union Pacific road, and Garfield had no knowledge of the company's operation until they were discussed in the newspapers in the fall of 1872.

When Congress met in December 1872, Mr. Blaine moved that a committee be appointed to investigate the Credit Mobilier transactions so far as certain members of Congress were concerned. It is well known to the readers of Gazette, that the committee reported in favor of expelling two members of Congress who were deeply involved in the Credit Mobilier frauds—Oakes Ames, of Massachusetts, and James Brooks, of New York. This was in the winter of 1873. Both had perjured themselves and discredited their seats in Congress, and it is not a little singular that Brooks died April 30, 1873, and Ames eight days later.

The first testimony of Oakes Ames concerning Mr. Garfield is very brief, and is as follows:
Q In reference to Mr. Garfield, you say that you agreed to get ten shares for him, and to hold them until he could pay for them, and that he never did pay for them, and that he never did pay for them, and that he never did pay for them.
A Yes, sir.
Q He never paid any money on that stock nor received any money from it? A No, on account of it.
Q He received no dividends? A No, sir; I think not. He says he did not. My own recollection is not very clear.
Q So that as you understand, Mr. Garfield never parted with any money nor received any money on that transaction? A No, sir. He had some money from me once, $500 or $600, and called it a loan. He said that I never received from him, and that he considered it a loan. He never took his stock, and never paid for it.
Q Did you understand it so? A Yes; I am willing to understand it. I do not recollect paying him any money, and he never received from me any money.
Q Who received the dividends? A Mr. Patterson, Mr. Engman, and James F. Wilson did, and I think Mr. Colfax received a part of them. I do not know whether he received them or not. I think Mr. Scott received a part of them. Messrs. Kelley and Garfield never paid for their stock, and never received their dividends. [P. 41]

Ames' second testimony was this, in regard to Mr. Garfield:
Q In regard to Mr. Garfield, state to the committee the details of the transaction between you and him in reference to Credit Mobilier stock? A—I got to Mr. Garfield ten shares of the Credit Mobilier stock, for which he paid me $1000.
Q—When did you agree with him for that? A—That agreement was in December, 1867, or January, 1868. About that time, about the time I had these conversations with all of them. It was all about the same time.
Q—State what grew out of it. A—Mr. Garfield did not pay me money. I sold the bonds belonging to his $1000 of stock, at 97, making $970. In June I received a dividend in cash on his stock or $900 which left a balance due him of $70, which I paid him. I said to him, "I will not deliver to him any stock before or since. This is the transaction and the only one."

THE JAMESVILLE GAZETTE.

VOLUME 24 JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1880. NUMBER 87

By Mr. Merrick: The $329 which you paid him was the surplus of earnings on the stock above the amount to be paid for it—per value? A—Yes, sir. He never had either the Credit Mobilier stock or Union Pacific Railroad stock. The only thing he realized from the transaction was the $329.
Q—I see on this statement in the account with General Garfield there is a charge of $47. It is interest from the July previous, is it? A—Yes, sir.
Q—And the $776 on the credit side is the 80 per cent bond dividend sold at 97 per cent? A—Yes, sir.
Q—And the $600 on the credit side is the money dividend? A—Yes, sir.
Q—And after you had received these two sums in the aggregate overpaid the price of the stock and interest $329, which you paid him? A—Yes, sir.
Q—You did not declare a certificate of stock to him? A—No, sir; he said nothing about that.
Q—Why did you not receive a certificate? A—Do not know.
Q—Do you remember any conversation between you and him in the adjustment of these accounts? A—I do not.
Q—You understood that you were the holder of his ten shares? A—Yes, sir.
Q—Did he so understand it? A—I presume so; it seems to have gone from his mind however.
Q—Was this the only dealing you had with him in reference to any stock? A—I think it was.
Q—There were dividends of Union Pacific Railroad stock on these ten shares? A—Yes, sir.
Q—Did General Garfield ever receive these? A—No, sir; never received but $329.
Q—Has there been any conversation between you and him in reference to the Pacific stock he was entitled to? A—No, sir.
Q—Has he ever called for it? A—No, sir.
Q—Have you ever offered it to him? A—No, sir.
Q—Has there been any conversation in relation to it? A—No.

It will be seen from this testimony that Ames claims that he paid Garfield $329 in dividends, and it will be further observed that Ames says Garfield never paid any money for the Credit Mobilier stock, that he never received a certificate of stock, that after June, 1868, Garfield never received, demanded or was offered, any dividend in any form on that stock. As to the $300, Garfield testified that when he returned from Europe in the fall of 1867, he asked a loan of $300 from Oakes Ames and that several months after, the loan was paid. Ames said he considered it was dividends on the Garfield's stock, but even Ames himself testified that there is no record that any stock of the Credit Mobilier company was ever issued to Garfield; and there is not an authoritative scrap of paper in existence, or a line of writing in any book, to show that Mr. Garfield had ever owned, or ever agreed to take any of the stock of the company. The bookkeepers of the company were sworn by the investigating committee, and their testimony was that there was no record of any stock having been sold or delivered to Mr. Garfield.

No one ever pretended that Garfield ever had anything to do with the Credit Mobilier stock, but Oakes Ames, the man whose perjury and disgrace brought him to his grave, and he prevaricated so many times in his testimony and contradicted himself so frequently, that it became clear to every member of the Committee, Democrats as well as Republicans, that Mr. Garfield was clear of any complicity in the Credit Mobilier schemes. Not only is this the case, but the only variance between Ames and Garfield is in regard to the $329, Garfield claiming that it was a loan, and Ames claiming that it was a part of some dividends. But Ames' testimony before the committee on the payment of $329 to Garfield by a check, is interesting. He said he paid him the money by a check which read as follows: Pay O. A. or bearer three hundred and twenty-nine dollars, and charge to my account. OAKES AMES.

To this Mr. Garfield said the check bore no endorsement, or other mark than the words and figures given. It was drawn, said Garfield to the Committee, "on the 23d day of June, and, as shown by the books of the Sergeant-at-Arms, was paid the same day by the paying-teller. But if this check was paid to me on the account just quoted, it must have been delivered to me three days before it was drawn; for the account says that I received the payment on the 19th of June."

When Ames testified he paid Garfield the $329 he was asked:
Q How was that paid? A. Paid in money, I believe.
A little later in the examination he swore:
Q You say that $329 was paid to him. How was that paid? A. I presume by a check on the Sergeant-at-Arms. And there are checks filed, without endorsing to the case of Mr. Garfield? A. No.
One week later he testified:
Q This check seems to have been paid to somebody, and taken up by the Sergeant-at-Arms. Those initials are your own? A. Yes, it is.
Q Do you know who had the benefit of this check? A. I cannot tell you.
Q Do you know who paid the money yourself? A. I have no idea. I may have drawn the money and handed it to another person. It was paid in this transaction. It may have been paid to Mr. Garfield. There were several sums of that amount.
Q Have you any memory in reference to this check? A. I have no memory as to that particular check.

Still later Ames testified:
Q In regard to Mr. Garfield, do you know whether you gave him a check, or paid him the money? A. I think that I did not pay him the money. He got it from the sergeant-at-arms.
Again he said to the Committee:
Q You think the check on which you wrote money to indicate the payment, must have been Mr. Garfield's? A. Yes, sir. That is my judgment.
Twelve days after answering the above question he said to the Committee:
A I am not sure how I paid Mr. Garfield.
On this point, the testimony concluded as follows, Mr. Ames being on the stand:
Q In testifying in Mr. Garfield's case, you say you may have drawn the money on the check and paid him. Is that your answer equally applicable to the case of Mr. Garfield? A. No.
Q Why not? A. I put Mr. Colfax's initials on the check, while I put no initials on Mr. Garfield's, and I may have drawn the money myself.
Q Did not Mr. Garfield's check belong to him? A. Mr. Garfield had not paid for his stock. He was entitled to $329 balance. But Mr. Cooper paid for his, and I had to business with his $1,300.
Q Is your recollection in regard to this payment to Mr. Garfield, that you paid him the money to the payment to Mr. Garfield? A. Yes, sir; I think it is.

And finally, in the examination of Mr. Dillion, cashier of the sergeant-at-arms, the following is recorded [p. 479]:
Q There is a check payable to Oakes Ames or bearer. Have you any recollection of that? A. That was paid to him, and I have no doubt myself that I paid that to Mr. Ames.
Mr. Garfield, in his defense published in 1874, said in regard to the check: "Reviewing the testimony on this point (and I have quoted it all), it will be seen that Mr Ames several times asserts that he does not know whether he paid me the check or not. He states positively that he has no special recollection of the check. His testimony is wholly inferential. In one of the seven paragraphs quoted, he says he paid me the money; in another he says he may have paid me the money; in three of them, he thinks or presumes, that he paid me the check; and in the other two he does not know."

Hon. C. G. Williams, in a letter to a friend in this city, written several weeks before the Chicago Convention, says of General Garfield: I sit only one seat from him in the House, know him through and through. He is in sympathy with the people. One of the noblest, faithful, royal hearted men I ever knew—I like the man with all my heart, with all his greatness, and he is truly great intellectually. He is in all his taste and habits simple as a child.

We notice that Senator Cameron, of this State, submitted a concurrent resolution on the last day of the session, allowing Congressional employees an annual roll of fifteen days' extra pay upon the adjournment of Congress. This is better than the custom which has prevailed for some time, of allowing them two months extra pay, for which no services were rendered.

Tilden and his friends understand the situation exactly. If the Cincinnati Convention refuses to nominate him, then it will be an open confession that all the Republican party has charged against him and the Democratic managers concerning the gigantic frauds in 1876, is true. Now let us see what the Convention will do with the Sage of Gramercy Park.

The Democrats will never be able to fasten a stain on the name of Mr. Garfield. Every act of his public life challenges the strictest scrutiny of the Democratic searchers after fraud. Their sudden attempt to connect him with the Credit Mobilier matter proves conclusively that the nomination is too strong for the Democratic party to battle against.

Mr. James H. Miner, of Richland Center, for many years County Judge of Richland, has been appointed one of the managers of the Industrial School for Boys, at Waukegan. He takes the place of Judge Gibbs, of Whitewater, whose term has expired.

Congress adjourned yesterday noon. No provisions have been made for the payment of the Deputy United States Marshals, the President having vetoed the bill which contained a political rider. Other important business goes over till the next session.

Before the Senate adjourned it had before it a bill which would add some $7,000 names to the present pension roll. The Washington claim agents are attempting to work up a sentiment in favor of the stupendous fraud.

MORE THAN REALIZED.

The Crookedness of the First National Bank of Brattleboro, Vermont.
BRATTLEBORO, Vt., June 16—The rumors upon which yesterday's dispatches were based concerning the insolvency of the First National Bank of Brattleboro are more than realized. Although a thorough investigation has not begun at two o'clock, enough is already known to warrant the statement that the loss will reach upward of $250,000 through the forgeries of the President, S. M. Wait, who has undoubtedly left the country, and, as the directors believe, taken a large sum of money with him, how much can only be determined by a searching investigation, which will be begun on the arrival of Bank Examiner Jones to-day, and who will act as receiver for the present. The first part of the investigation includes the Connecticut River Railroad for about $500,000, Frederick Billings, $200,000; Tremor W. Park, $200,000; Lyon & Healy, of Chicago, $200,000; Tanton Locomotive Works, about $12,000; C. J. Andon Hine, $15,000; Verrill & Co., New York, some $75,000; and others, whose names will be made public as the investigation proceeds.
How much of this paper has been used by Wait as collateral, upon which he may have raised large amounts for individual use, the directors are unable to say, but rumors that the Springfield and Boston banks have been victimized in this way are current.

PLEADED GUILTY.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 16—Andrew F. and Francis Hungerford, father and son, of Marshall county, pleaded guilty to-day of making and selling counterfeit Mexican dollars. John C. Prather, of Seymour, also pleaded guilty to making counterfeit coins. Prather was accused of the murder of his wife to obtain insurance on her life, but was acquitted. When he sued for the money the company set up a claim that the woman was murdered, and the defense was held to be good by the jury.

A Large Legacy to a Miner.
VIRGINIA (Nev.) Enterprise.
T. J. Cooper, of this city, left last night for London, England, to get the sum of $200,000, left him by will by his cousin, Charles Barber, late a merchant in California. Mr. Cooper has been in this city some sixteen years. He was for a long time rope-man at the Savage, and Hale and Norcross mines, and of late has occupied the same position at the C. and O. mine. Mr. Cooper is going on no wild-goose chase. Some two months ago he saw himself advertised for in an English paper, when he wrote to the proper parties and satisfied them that he was the T. J. Cooper they were in search of, and money was sent him by the court of chancery on which to go to England and get the amount left him. His father, who resides near Canton, Iowa, will accompany him to England. Mr. Cooper will return to this city with his wife, as he leaves his wife and family here. Mr. Cooper was pretty well fixed in this place before the big fire, but since that time he has had it about as rough as any other man, working at the mines for wages.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 17—The Republican Convention assembled at 10 o'clock. There is a great crowd in attendance. On the third ballot Hon. A. G. Porter was nominated for Governor, receiving 635 votes.

THE SLATE.

The Slate fixed for the Cincinnati Convention.

NEW YORK, June 16—A special from Washington says: The supposition in Democratic circles here to-day is that the Tilden forces will muster nearly, but not quite, 200 delegates at Cincinnati; that they do not hope or mean to nominate Mr. Tilden, but that the desire of the leader of the band is to hold them as a compact body to be used at the right moment to nominate some one who shall, after several ballots, appear to be strong enough to carry with their help. The aim of the combination is, of course, to gather into its own hands a few more votes than a third of the Convention, in which case no one would be nominated without their consent. But in this, it is here believed, they will fail.

THE VETO MESSAGE.

The Action of the Senate on the President's Veto.
WASHINGTON, June 16—The Senate showed great disrespect to the President to-day by not having his veto read. It was brought in last evening, and although the session lasted till after ten o'clock, the message was left on the table with the seal unbroken. To-day there was a repeated effort, made by the Republicans to consider it, but without effect. Thurman finally read the Constitution to show that although it ought to be read and acted upon, he did not see why it would not do just as well to let it go until next December and took that course. The Senate therefore has no official knowledge of the contents of the document, and will not meet again till after the election, when everything to which it refers will be past and gone.

THE RECEPTION

Of General Garfield by the Union Veteran Club at Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 16—The reception of General Garfield by the Union Veteran Club this evening called out a vast and enthusiastic crowd. At 8 o'clock people began to gather about the Riggs house on the G street front, where a balcony draped in flags had been erected. The Veterans started out, headed by the Marine Band, and after marching through the principal streets, drew up at the hotel. By this time an immense crowd had gathered on the street, reaching farther than the compass of any human voice. After cheers there was loud and tumultuous call for Garfield. Colonel Burnside mounted the stand, followed by General Garfield and Attorney General Devens. The cheers were deafening at the sight of Garfield, but he kept in the background while Colonel Burnside, President of the Veteran Club, introduced Devens. At the sight of the well-known Hebrew features of the Attorney General there were cheers. He has a magnificent voice, with slow utterance, distinct enunciation, and speaks with a slightly English accent. He commanded attention at once, and made a speech that pleased the audience from the first. He made no direct allusion to any defeated candidate except General Grant, and when he did the storm of applause that swept over the crowd warned him that he stood on dangerous ground. He turned it skillfully, however, and ran clear of the snag.

RELIGIOUS.

MILWAUKEE, June 16—The Western Conference of Unitarians and Independent Congregational churches is in session here. An address was delivered by President Shorley, and the following committees were appointed: Business, Committee—The Rev. T. B. Barbush, Detroit; the Rev. W. C. Gannett, St. Paul; the Rev. Brooks Hereford, Chicago; the Rev. S. L. Hosmer, Cleveland; Mr. Udell, St. Louis; Mrs. Hilton, Chicago; Finance Committee—The Rev. Brooks Hereford, Chicago; the Rev. J. R. Crooker, Laporte, Ind.; J. N. Pardee, Charleotte, Mich.; Judge Prichard, Janesville. The report of the Secretary shows a steady gain in every State, and the work toward the destruction of mortgages was being continued. The Western Conference contributed for church work $12,000; for home expenses, $7,000.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE REMUNAT MEMOIRS.
MEMOIRS OF MADAME DE REMUNAT, 1802-1808.—With a preface and notes by her grandson, Paul de Remusat. Translated from the French by Mrs. Cathel Hoey and John Lins. Complete in one volume, large 8vo, pp. 707—$2.00. New York: D. Appleton & Co.; Chicago: Janssen, McClurg & Co. For sale by the Janesville dealers.

When these memoirs appeared, last year, in more transient form of publication, they proved, as was predicted, the literary sensation of the time. Works relating to Napoleon have been written in great numbers, but amidst them all, Mme. de Remusat's memoirs stand alone, covering a group distinct to themselves. During the eventful years 1802-1808, she was the intimate friend and trusted confidant of Josephine, and through the medium of her memoirs we gain unrivaled view of the life of Bonaparte and his wife and the terms on which they lived. When appointed to the office of lady in waiting to Josephine, Mme. de Remusat was but twenty-two, and an extremely clever and observing woman; the memoirs were not written until ten years after the expiration of her service at the court, and her views therein expressed may be regarded as the more candid because the result of due reflection. The smallness of the great Napoleon is brought into broad relief; the intrigues and scandals of court life under the First Empire; the jealousies of and meanness practiced toward Josephine and her family by all the Bonapartes; the listlessness and indolent character of the former employed to subordinate all around him to his will—all are most graphically and pungently depicted, while the skillfully drawn and evidently not too highly colored pictures of character, manners and life are entertaining and refreshing in the highest degree. It is indeed, a most fascinating personal narrative, a record of what a keen eyed, quick witted woman saw behind the scenes at Napoleon's court, while not the least interesting feature is the revelation of the writer's own personality and her womanlike yet penetrating reflections on the social and political questions of her day. In the present handsomely bound and permanent form the memoirs will doubtless receive even a wider circulation and heartier appreciation than before. The translation is excellent and preserves all the charms of the original style.

ENGLISH MEN OF LETTERS.

The series of "English Men of Letters," edited by John Morley. New York: Harper & Bros.; Western agents, Janssen, McCurg & Co., Chicago, already embraces Johnson, Gibbon, Scott, Shelley, Hume, Goldsmith, Defoe, Burns, Spenser, Thackeray, Burke, Milton and Southey, and now are added Chaucer (by Prof. A. W. Ward) and Bunyan (by J. A. Froude). Each volume contains 12 mo., cloth $1. The short books which compose this series are addressed to the general public, with a view to stirring and satisfying an interest in literature and its great topics in the minds of those who have to read as they read. An immense class is growing up, and most every year increase, whose education will have made them alive to the importance of the masters of our literature, and capable of intelligent curiosity as to their performances. The series is intended to do and does give the means of nourishing this curiosity to an extent that is copious enough to be profitable for knowledge and life, and yet brief enough to serve those whose leisure is scanty. The biographies are in each case written by master hands of the present day, who have acquired special eminence in the study of the particular works and lives to be criticized and illustrated, and bring to their work the ripe judgment of intelligent students and presumably careful critics. The two volumes before us, devoted respectively to Bunyan and Chaucer, are, in many respects, equal to the best of this truly admirable and practical series of literary biographies.

Garfield as a Sailor.

From the Cleveland Leader.

At this early period the books which the young General mostly read were tales of the sea. These were the only stories that could be easily obtained. The General says that he most vividly remembers the "Pirate's Own Book," and the impression which it made lived with him for years. He dreamed of an impossible career on the ocean. At the age of sixteen he took the job of chopping twenty-five cords of wood for a man in the township of Newburg, within the present limits of the city. Here, facing the north, he could see the slaty bluffs of the Erie, and he imagined it was the ocean, and his ears for the sea increased. Finishing his wood chopping, he engaged to assist a Mr. Treat through haying and harvesting, and with his earnings in his pocket announced to his mother that he could no longer restrain his desire for the life on the wave, and that he had decided to immediately depart. Amid prayers and forebodings she bade him good bye, and he found his way on foot to Cleveland.

Seeking the harbor, he boarded the only ship that lay in port and inquired for the captain. His ideas of a captain were formed from the stories he had read, and he imagined a dashing, brave and gallant gentleman—capable, when the occasion required, of performing desperate deeds, but disposed to be, as a general thing, generous to a fault. To the youth's question a hand replied that the captain would soon come up from the hold. The prophecy proved true. First he was heard, then seen clearing his way, with volleys after volleys of oaths. The bashful youth gently approached and diffidently asked if he wanted a hand. An increased flood of oaths, turned wholly in his direction, was the only answer received. A suppressed titter came from the men, and the coming General retired in confusion. Walking about the docks and looking at the scanty indications of commerce at that early day, he began to collect his thoughts and finally reasoned that as the lake was to the ocean, so was the canal to the lake, and his failure and securing a situation arose from the fact that he was not sufficiently posted in the ways of sailors. To the canal he would go and learn. He went and obtained the position of driver on the first canal boat to which he applied.

His disposition and capacity to learn were such that at the end of the first round trip he was promoted from driver to boatsman. He steered instead of driving.

The General says that, by actual count, during his first trip as boatsman, he fell into the canal fourteen times. This was serious. The malaria of the canal region would in all probability have taken hold of his system in due time anyhow, but this helped it. He could not swim a stroke and came near drowning several times. At length he floundered in for the fourteenth time, and in his efforts to save himself luckily caught hold of the drag rope of the boat. Hand over hand it gave out, and his hope became small. Finally the rope held, and he pulled himself on board. Ever philosophical, he examined the rope and found that it had curiously enough drawn itself into a crack and knotted. He concluded that there was not more than one chance in a thousand of a rope thus knotting itself, and he thought it was a significant fact. As he sat there in the wet and cold of the night his mind wandered to his mother, and he remembered that he had not told her of his whereabouts, and she imagined that he was upon the lake. He decided to return to her after that trip and rest and recruit for a time. This resolution was kept. Arriving in the vicinity of his humble home at night he quickly approached the door and heard the mother in prayer. She prayed for the safe return of the wandering son. At this close he softly opened the door, and the prayer was answered. Then for the first time did he fully comprehend that his departure had crushed her.

Following this he was for six months prostrated with the ague cake in the side. The mother watched over him with constant care during all the terrible days of suffering, which only his iron constitution permitted him to weather. He was still determined to return to the canal, and thence to the lake and ocean. His mother well knew that any opposition would be useless, so she argued that he had better attend school for a time, when he was able, and thus fit himself to teach school during the winter months when he could not sail.

He began the life of a scholar at the old Georgia Seminary in Chester, and from there went to Hiram and Williams.

SKIN GRAFTING.

Some Remarkable Operations Performed at the Bellevue Hospital.

How the Skin is Useful After Death.

New York Herald.

The wonderful degree of perfection to which the science of surgery has attained in the United States within the past year and the practical benefits which daily result from the experiments made in our hospitals are attracting the attention of scientific circles throughout the world.

One of the latest and most unique operations which has been suddenly called into general use is that of skin grafting.

Although a number of successful cases are on record in which French surgeons have performed this operation, there has been little confidence left in the method until recently.

The furor caused by an account of such an operation, published in the Herald a few days ago, proves how little is known about skin grafting by the public. But by far the most astonishing of all experiments has been tried, proved, and is now included in the regular treatment of Bellevue Hospital by the house surgeon Dr. J. H. Girdner, who has actually succeeded in keeping a patient alive in a dead man's skin.

Learning that Dr. Girdner had made exceptional advances in this branch of surgery, a Herald reporter called at Bellevue Hospital yesterday, and obtained an interview on the subject.

"I have been experimenting about a year on the operation of skin grafting and have obtained some very flattering results," he said. "I had several patients in my ward who had chronic ulcers of the leg which no ordinary treatment could cure. I read one day of the grafting experiments performed by a French surgeon, and, feeling that one of the patients would be decided as a last resource to graft skin on the surface of the ulcers. The patient on whom I was to perform the operation refused to allow any skin to be cut from his arm or body for the purpose, claiming that the pain was too great. I determined to try the skin of a corpse, as I would have been unjust to expect any of the other patients to make the sacrifice to save a man who refused to suffer himself. I cut a piece of skin from a patient who died in the wards a few hours before, first taking care to inquire whether the cause of death was due to a poisonous disease or not. I then cut the cuticle into small pieces which I laid on the granulated surface of the ulcers, and bandaged the leg up very firmly. In three days the graft began to show signs of life, a perfect union having taken place, and in a week a splendid skin, smooth and elastic, had grown over the ulcerated part, making a complete cure, and leaving no scar behind. Since that time I have treated upward of fifty cases with invariable success. I have grafted the skin of an Irishman on a negro, and I have grafted the skin of a negro on an Irishman with ease. In both cases the skin lost its original color, and changed its hue to suit the wearer. The great value of skin grafting is in preventing ugly scars. When a man's face is burned the elastic portion of the skin is destroyed, and in healing it contracts, twisting the countenance out of shape in a hideous manner. A new skin given to the patient heals the affected part in several days, and leaves a mark which is hardly noticeable.

"The theory of grafting up to the present time has been that the presence of epithelial cells in the cuticle induce the granulations of the raw flesh to form a similar growth and thus cicatrization proceeds. I am in a position to deny the correctness of this theory, while I have no explanation to offer as a substitute. I have taken pieces of muscle from the arm and grafted a skin from the fragments quite as readily as from pieces of skin, thus proving that epidermic cells form no part in the induction of cicatrization. One of the most wonderful results of the researches which is being made in the direction of grafting is the feasibility of removing scars from the body entirely and filling the place

Gives us a better majority as our sales every month show.

And yet all are not happy. We are. Why shouldn't we be?

Trade increasing every month; receiving goods every day and selling them too. Why? Because we sell them cheap.

When a customer comes in and looks at our goods, and after going around town and examining goods and prices in all the other clothing stores, comes back and buys of us, we think that is good evidence that we are selling a little better goods and at a little lower prices than anybody else. Give us a chance and we will prove what we say. Always glad to show goods.

ROUSING RATIFICATION.

The Republicans to Have a Big Meeting in the Court House Park Next Saturday Evening.

The Republicans of this city and county are to have a mammoth mass-meeting in the Court House park next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, in ratification of the nominations of Garfield and Arthur. Congressman Charles G. Williams, Hon. J. B. Cassoday, and prominent speakers from abroad will be present to address the meeting. Good music will be provided, and a rousing meeting will result.

BRIEFLETS.

—Miss Battle is not to play at Miss Gavin's entertainment this evening.

—Isn't there danger of a drought? It hasn't rained for nearly twenty-four hours.

—To-night Miss Gavin appears at the Opera house. She should have a crowd to hear her.

—The funeral of Miss Florence Cadwell was held this afternoon, Rev. T. P. Sawin officiating.

—Judge Prichard is among those present at the meeting of the Western Unitarian Conference in Milwaukee.

—F. F. Prentice and J. B. Doe, Jr., started for Winona, Minnesota, to-day and will spend a week in Minnesota.

—Dr. S. S. Judd's name appears among the members of the National Eclectic Medical Association present at their meeting in Chicago.

—J. B. Doe, Esq., was yesterday elected as one of the delegates from the Wisconsin Diocese to the General Convention of the Episcopal church.

—The Janesville Furniture Company's new horse died to-day noon. It was a good one, but not good enough to stand a severe attack of congestion of the lungs.

—St. Mary's church picnic is to be held next Tuesday. Both the Ladies and the Bower City Bells have been engaged, and will leave their docks hourly for the grove, during the day and evening.

—Let none forget the grand ratification meeting in the Court House park next Saturday evening. There is to be a big time, and those anxious to know all about the Republican nominees will there learn much of interest and importance.

—There is to be a benefit festival for Father Doyle, in Wheeler's grove, Third ward, Monday, July 5. This will give a chance for his friends to show their appreciation of him, and swell the funds for the trip and vacation, needed by him on account of his ill health.

—Another of our druggists is in trouble. He ate some Limburger cheese last night, and can't get rid of the smell to-day. It he would only look in the lining of that cap of his he would find the cause. The boys have been stuffing it for him with what cheese there was left over.

—The heaviest mail, which generally arrives here in the morning, missed connection at Watertown this morning, so that it did not reach here until the afternoon. Monday morning the same mishap occurred. It is provoking to business men, causes trouble at the postoffice and is well known to all.

—It isn't much fun after all to pound a poor Dutchman. Four of the boys who engaged in that sport yesterday sentenced by Justice Nolan to sixty days each in jail at hard labor. Their names are Con Murphy, John Foley, Dave Griffin and James Murray. Young Barry who was arrested with them was discharged.

—The social at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Clark last evening was a complete success. There were about a hundred present. Good music, happy chatings, and an abundance of ice cream and cake, all helped to make the evening's enjoyment complete. Many of the friends from Milton, who were in the city attending the wedding, remained and shared the evening's entertainment.

—We are in receipt of a programme of an entertainment to be given in Wesleyan hall, Boston, to-morrow evening by Miss Minerva Guernsey, assisted by the Bernhardt Lustrana Concert Company. Miss Guernsey is to give a scene from "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Patrick's French," a scene from the "Bleak House," "That Naughty Little Girl," and a scene from "Faust." She expects to return home next week, and will remain here this summer.

—Those who wish a really rich treat and who want to enjoy an evening with Shakespeare should go to the Opera house this evening and hear Miss Emilie Gavin. She is grand, as all will bear witness who have heard her before in this city. The public are somewhat tired of so called readings, but there is no "so-called" about her. She is an artist of established reputation, one who will always please, one who will enthrall an audience. Hear her by all means.

Universally acknowledged the best, Astor House, New York.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON DRUGGISTS.

AFTER WATER.

An Enterprising Move Started for Having the Court House Park Beautified by Fountains.

This morning a good idea crowded itself into the brain of Mr. G. W. Hawes, and like the other good ideas which find their way there, it soon took the form of action. It was in fact that the Court House park should be supplied with water works. He at once consulted with C. B. Conrad, and soon other of our citizens became enlisted in the enterprise and in the course of a few hours a goodly portion of the funds needed were subscribed. It is the intention to have a well and a wind mill, and a reservoir, from which the water can be carried through pipes to fountains in various parts of the park, beautifying its appearance, and serving some very practical purposes as well. The water can be used for keeping the trees and foliage from suffering from any drought, and in case of a fire in that vicinity the supply of water will prove a wonderful help. All of the citizens to whom the subject has been broached, pronounce the scheme an excellent one, and there is no doubt but that the enterprise will meet with success. A little public spirit and ambition is all that is needed, and every one interested in keeping Janesville up with other cities of its size will heartily join in helping the plan along. The supply of water is much needed; it will be of beauty and of practical use, and it all join in helping the enterprise along, it will not be a heavy burden upon any one. As a fire protection it would pay, and as a help to making the park one that Janesville can show visitors with pride, it certainly deserves all the needed help to make it a success.

PAYMENT OF THE PRIZE.

The Janesville Guards Receive the Cash Which They Won in Milwaukee.

Experience at home if not abroad has taught some in our midst that it is one thing to win a prize and another to get it paid, and therefore some have prophesied a delay in getting the money due the Janesville Guards as the result of their contest in Milwaukee. All such expectations of delay are now ended, as the Guards have not only received the money, but have been generously dealt with as will be seen from the following letter which is self-explanatory:

MILWAUKEE, June 16, 1880.

Captain H. A. Smith, Janesville Guards.
DEAR SIR:—By order of the Executive Committee I transmit check for $350, being amount of award as first prize in the competitive drill. Six companies drilled, making prizes to be paid one $100, $100 or $600. The Committee directs that $700 be distributed, one-half of which belongs to your company. I congratulate the city of Janesville in having such a company as the Janesville Guards. It is a credit to the State.

Yours Very Truly,
W. A. COLLINS,
Chairman Finance Committee.

A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE.

Yesterday being the birthday of Miss Jessie Ball, about twenty of her young friends arranged to give her a happy surprise in the evening, and carried the arrangements into successful execution. They assembled at Mr. Bump's residence about 7 o'clock, and then proceeded in a body to the home of Mr. E. T. Foote, who is an uncle of the young victim of the surprise. The plot had been so well planned that Miss Jessie did not arrive until the party had gathered in the rooms up stairs, and she did not get an inkling of their presence in the house until she went up stairs on some errand for her uncle, when she suddenly was brought to face the group of her merry young friends. It was a complete surprise, and the meeting proved a happy opening for a season of hearty enjoyment. All hands went in for a good time. Mrs. J. D. King was present and furnished music for the young folk. There was dancing and chatting, and partaking of the bountiful refreshments. In fact the hours were crowded with merriment, and the enjoyment was immense.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

The following is the programme for the Commencement week at Milton College:
Friday evening, June 25.—Annual sermon before the Christian Association by Rev. T. P. Sawin, of Janesville.
Saturday evening, June 27.—Baccalaureate sermon by State Superintendent, W. C. Whitford.

Monday evening, June 28.—Annual address before the Literary Societies by Hon. T. O. Howe, of Green Bay.

Tuesday evening, June 29.—Joint anniversary session of the Iduna, Orphidian and Philomathean Societies.

Wednesday morning, June 30.—At 10 o'clock, exercises of the graduating class. Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, annual address before the Alumni by M. D. L. Fuller, M. S., (class of '71) of Plymouth. Annual poem by Miss M. E. Douglas (class of '79), of Johnston.

The music of Commencement Day will be furnished by the Milton Cornet Band, and the exercises will be held on the College Campus; the preceding exercises will occur in College Chapel. The public are cordially invited to be present.

DUEL AT DAYBREAK.

There was a duel on the Fair grounds at sunrise this morning. The parties were two young fellows who have been at work for Nelson and Stewart at the stables there. For some time there has been an ill feeling between them, one of them seeming desirous of "picking" on the other, and raising a tumult. The other was a little timid about joining issue, and wanted to avoid blows, but patience ceased to be a virtue, and he accepted the challenge issued, and this morning they met for the combat. There was no coffee nor pistols. Right fists were chosen for weapons and left fists for seconds, and the two young men went at it. For fifteen minutes they fought desperately. At last the bully commenced biting the more timid contestant, and after taking a few mouthfuls out of his arm and a chunk out of his chin, the latter got hold of an ink-bottle and pounded his rival until he cried "enough" and begged for peace. Both were pretty well used up, and the fellow who had been leading on in the fight got all that he wanted, and will henceforth be more peaceable. If any body notices any blood trickling down the hill they will now know where it comes from.

WORDS FROM THE WORKERS.

Some of the Active Men in the Y. M. C. A. Tell Their Experience in the Cities.

Last evening there was a good sized audience gathered at Cannon's hall in response to the announcement of a special meeting of special interest. Good music was provided and to help in leading the congregational singing Mr. J. E. Sargent played the organ. Mr. Silas Kent handled his cornet, and Misses Wiley and Mr. J. G. Sax, gave their voices. Mr. W. E. Lewis the State Secretary of the Association was present and presided, opening the services with reading of the Scriptures and prayer and then introducing the several speakers.

Mr. W. H. Sands, General Secretary of the Association at Columbus, Ohio, spoke first, and suggested methods of increasing the active membership. He professed his remarks by ranking the association next to the church rather than attempting to supplant it. Those who were most active in the association work, were most active in church work and the church had first claim upon them. He believed in getting influential business men interested in the work, and occupying positions on the executive committee. The association should be made to rank high socially. Another point was to set all of the young men of the churches to work in different ways. He sought to impress the fact that there was great need of doing an un denominational work, and in this all could unite.

Mr. W. H. Clement, General Secretary of Racine, then gave an account of how the reading room had been organized there. He described the room, its furnishings, its newspapers, magazines, and library of about three hundred volumes. During the winter the visitors had averaged about thirty daily, and the room proved a pleasant resort for young men.

Mr. Bischoff, of Springfield, Ill., related the good effect of having a lecture course during the winter. Such a course of lectures by home talent in his own place had added about seventy five members to the association, and created much interest. He also narrated his own experience, how he was reached by the association, when he came as a stranger to Peoria, and the work done by the four young men who constituted the active membership of that local association. He gave some practical talk about the way of reaching young men, and handling them. He did not believe in boring them through with an argument, and then hanging them up on a peg, to season, and make kindling wood for the devil. The social element was a great power, and should be handled wisely.

Mr. S. M. Sayford, State Secretary of Massachusetts, gave an earnest talk in answer to the query—"How can Christian young men be made to work?" He gave many thrilling illustrations from his own experiences in handling young men. He deemed as a first requisite that they must be ready to sacrifice before they become good workers. They must be impressed with the importance of the work and their own responsibility. They must feel that the work is for Christ, and not for the association. They must have some definite work given them. The social element was also touched upon as a great power. The young men must be interested in the work. In closing he crowded much good sense into the thought that when a man became a worker the association should not make too many demands upon his time, but should remember that the church, that business, that home, had demands no less just.

Another earnest talk was given by Frank W. Smith, the General Secretary of the Railroad Y. M. C. A. at Toledo. He gave some interesting facts about the work among the railroad boys. Besides the religious meetings, etc., the association did the practical work of caring for those who were injured or sick, of visiting those in trouble or in mourning, of being the messengers to break as softly as possible any ill news which comes over the wires to the families of railroad men. He spoke of the success of the work being so marked that the railroad companies contributed liberally toward sustaining it, believing it to be practical and worthy of encouragement.

MISS KUNKLE IN BELOIT.

To the Editor.
Miss Anna E. R. Kunkle, of the Philadelphia School of Oratory, now residing in your city, gave a reading in the Congregational church here Tuesday evening. Not a large, but a very appreciative audience greeted her. Miss Kunkle was happy in her selections and her rendering of each was almost faultless. So modest, so unassuming, so natural, and withal so gifted with the faculty of impersonating every shade of the characters she presented, it is refreshing and indeed a rare treat to listen to her. Nature has evidently done much for Miss Kunkle in the line of her speciality, and this, coupled with the study and careful culture which she has had, places her among the foremost of the profession. Beloit is delighted with her, and encouraged by Prof. Beach of the high school, and other leading educators in our city, she has decided to devote a portion of her time during the summer, in training a class here in elocution.

SIGHTS OF A CYCLONE.

How the Rain and Wind Cause Trouble All Along the Line—Experiences of a Janesville Man Away From Home.

To the Editor.
NEWPORT, Ky., June 15.—By stopping in Chicago over Sunday and going to church in the morning, and to a temperance meeting in the evening, I thought I was prepared, after such a rest, to pass along.

The country between Chicago and the Ohio river is all about, and rain fell almost constantly, while the corn fields were in many instances peeping out of water for a breath of air. I suggested that they should attach small side-wheel yaws to their cultivators. But rain it did, and blow it did—both doing their level best to level the loose truck. The clouds were angry, and more coming. By and by the train stopped in a cut just north of Lafayette, and then we had the pleasure of waiting and staring for two long hours, to enable the workmen to remove the mass of dirt, sand and gravel that had covered the track from one to four feet. At a place some miles from Shelbyville, we had the rare luck to witness a cyclone. When first noticed it seemed to hang from the dark mass of clouds apparently thirty degrees high, and all at once it dropped to the ground, gathering up its jewels in the shape of hay, leaves, limbs, boards, rails, &c., and was coming straight towards the train, and the conductor ordered the windows closed. When the whirlpool seemed to be near, I said "By zounds, it will strike the train," (and you know I am careful what I say Mr. Editor,) but it crossed the track 20 rods behind us, having a breadth of perhaps ten rods on the ground, and the roar was terrible even above the rumble of the train. It was gathering strength, and as it rushed onward in its career several voices exclaimed "there, it will take that house," but it passed just back of it, through a grove of trees a foot through, and many of the tops flew into the air as swift as arrows, and trees bent entirely to the ground, and many lesser ones fell victims. The whirlpool seemed to be a distance of 80 rods for at least seven miles, and kept pace with the train.

This exploded, and one wing raised itself among the clouds while another mass rolled itself up like a hose on a cart; and after winding itself up and regaining strength, it struck the clouds in the rear, at march, devastation must have followed. As it was, several buildings were uprooted, and some demolished; and one man was gathered up in a mass of tree tops, broken fence, &c., and carried up some distance, and, it is said, the from the injuries. The elements seemed to be in a regular rampage; for last night in this city another, almost a hurricane, came this way; and this morning I saw large trees lying entirely across the pavement, reaching from one curbstone to another, and tearing up the street paving stones. At present the weather is calm, but it is not so calm as it was, rushing along the sky. There is something grand in storms, and I remember once crouching under a huge rock on Mount Washington, when the mountain quaked, and the thunder and lightning was simply terrific for an hour, and ere long the whole business of thunder and lightning was in front of me, while it appeared as though I could walk on the lightning streaks. That was grand, I say, but I do not know of any one who is willing to go up in these tormented whirlwinds. Verily, we must be passing through the tail of a comet, and the heavy planets, are no doubt doing their share to disturb us. We must grin and bear it, however.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

For CATARRH

A purely vegetable distillation entirely unlike all other remedies. In the preparation of this remarkable remedy every herb, plant and bark is subjected to distillation, whereby the essential medicinal principle is obtained in vapor, condensed and bottled. What remains in the still is inert, valueless, and totally unfit for use in any form so delicate as the nasal passage. Yet all snuffs are insoluble compounds of woody fibre, all tinctures, saturated with alcohol.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE

Is a local and constitutional remedy, and is applied to the nasal passages by insufflation, thus relieving inflammation and irritation, and thereby clearing, cleansing and purifying the secretions. Internally administered, it acts upon the organs of circulation, keeps the skin moist, and neutralizes the acid poison that has found its way into the stomach and thence into the blood. It does not seem possible for human ingenuity to devise a more rational treatment.

SURPRISING CURE.

Gentlemen.—About twelve years ago, while travelling with Father Kemp's Old Folks Concert Troupe as a tenor singer, I took a severe cold and was laid up at Newark, N. J. This cold brought on severe attacks of Catarrh of the Nose, Throat and Lungs, which I battled with every known remedy for four weeks without avail, and was finally obliged to give up my most desirable position and return home unable to sing a note. For three years afterwards I was unable to sing at all, and was finally obliged to give up my most desirable position and return home unable to sing a note. For three years afterwards I was unable to sing at all, and was finally obliged to give up my most desirable position and return home unable to sing a note. For three years afterwards I was unable to sing at all, and was finally obliged to give up my most desirable position and return home unable to sing a note.

WALTHAM, MASS., Jan. 1, 1880.

I have purchased the Radical Cure of GEO. H. COLLINS, of Hartford, Conn., and have used it with the most successful results.

Each package contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhalant Tube, with full directions for use in all cases, price, $1.00. For sale by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. WELLS & FORTY, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER

An Electro-Galvanic Battery combined with a highly Medicated Plaster containing the choicest medicinal Gums and Balsams known to modern Pharmacy.

These Plasters have been before the public for two years, and notwithstanding the immense number of remedies in the form of liniments, lotions, poultices, and ordinary plasters, they have steadily increased in sale and with universal approval, as evidenced by over one thousand unsolicited testimonials in our possession. Many remarkable cases have been certified to by well-known citizens in all parts of the United States, and of which will be sent free of charge to any one desiring them. Improvements in many ways have been made, as suggested by experience and use, and it is believed that this is the best plaster in the world of medicine. All we ask from every sufferer in this and is a trial. The price is 50¢ each, although the cost is double that of any other plaster. But, notwithstanding the efforts of the pretentious to make the best plaster in the world for the least money, any similar remedy will be found ready to misrepresent them for selfish motives and endeavor to substitute others. If you ask for COLLINS' VOLTAIC PLASTER you will have to send to us for it. Sold by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canada, and by WELLS & FORTY, Proprietors, Boston, Mass. aug30d17
